The outbreak of swine flu that was first detected in Mexico was declared a global epidemic on June 11, 2009. It is the first worldwide epidemic ___1___ by the World Health Organization in 41 years.

The heightened alert ___2___ an emergency meeting with flu experts in Geneva that assembled after a sharp rise in cases in Australia, and rising ___3___ in Britain, Japan, Chile and elsewhere.

But the epidemic is "___4___" in severity, according to Margaret Chan, the organization's director general, ___5___ the overwhelming majority of patients experiencing only mild symptoms and a full recovery, often in the ___6___ of any medical treatment.

The outbreak came to global ___7___ in late April 2009, when Mexican authorities noted an unusually large number of hospitalizations and deaths ___8___ healthy adults. As much of Mexico City shut down at the height of a panic, cases began to ___9___ in New York City, the southwestern United States and around the world.

In the United States, new cases seemed to fade ___10___ warmer weather arrived. But in late September 2009, officials reported there was ___11___ flu activity in almost every state and that virtually all the ___12___ tested are the new swine flu, also known as (A)H1N1, not seasonal flu. In the U.S., it has ___13___ more than one million people, and caused more than 600 deaths and more than 6,000 hospitalizations.

Federal health officials ___14___ Tamiflu for children from the national stockpile and began ___15___ orders from the states for the new swine flu vaccine. The new vaccine, which is different from the annual flu vaccine, is ___16___ ahead of expectations. More than three million doses were to be made available in early October 2009, though most those ___17___ doses were of the FluMist nasal spray type, which is not ___18___ for pregnant women, people over 50 or those with breathing difficulties, heart disease or several other ___19___. But it was still possible to vaccinate people in other high-risk groups: health care workers, people ___20___ infants and healthy young people.

The lonest bull run in a century of art-market history ended on a dramatic note with a sale of 56 works by Damien Hirt,Beautiful Inside My Head Forever,at Sotheby's in London on September 15th 2008.All but two pieces sold,fetching more than £70m, a record for a sale by a single artist.It was a last victory.As the auctioneer called out bids,in New York one of the olsest banks on Wall Street,Lehman Brother, filed for bankruptcy.

The world art market had already been losing momentum for a while after rising bewilderingly singce2003.At its peak in 2007 it was worth some $ 65 billion,reckons Clare McAndrew,founder of art Economics,a research firm—double the figure five year earlier. Since then it may have come down to $50 billion.But the market generates interest far beyond its size because it brings together great wealth,enormous egos,greed,passion and controversy in a way matched by few other industries.

In the weeks and months that followed Mr.Hirst's sale, spending of any sort became deeply unfashionable.In the art world that meant collectors stayed away from galleries and salerooms. Sale of contemporary art fell by two—thirds,and in the most overheated sector,they were down by nearly 90% in the year to November 2008.Within weeks the world's two biggest auction houses,Sotheby's and Christie's,had to pay out nearly $ 200m in guarantees to clients who had placed works for sale with them.

The current downturn in the art maiket is the worst since the Japanese stopped buying Impressionist at the end of 1989.This time experts reckon that prices are about 40% down on their peak on average, though some have been far more fluctuant.But Edward Dolman,Christe's chief executive, say's :“I'm pretty confident we 're at the bottom.”

What makes this slump different from the last,he say's, is that there are still buyers in the market.Almost everyone who was interviewed for this special report said that the biggst problem at the moment is not a lack of demand but a lack of good work to sell.The three Ds—death,debt and divorce—still deliver workers of art to the market.But anyone who does not have to sell is keeping away,waiting for confidence to return.

21.In the first paragraph,Damien Hirst's sale was referred to as "a last victory" because____

- [A]the art marker had witnessed a succession of victories
- [B]the auctionneer finally got the two pieces at the highest bids
- [C]Beautiful inside My Head Foreuvr won over all masterpieces
- [D]it was successfully made just before the world financial crisis

22.By saying "spending of any sort became deeply unfashionable"(Line 1-2,para.3),the author suggests that____

- [A]collectors were no longer actively in art -market auctions
- [B]people stopped every kind of spending and stayed away from galleries
- [C]art collection as a fashion had lost its appeal to a great extent
- [D]works of art in general had gone out of fashion so they were not worth buying

23.Which of the foiiowing statements is NOT ture?

- [A]Sales of contemporary art fell dramatically from 2007 to 2008
- [B]The art market surpassed many other industries in momentum.
- [C]The art market generally went downward in various ways.
- [D]Some art dealers were awaiting better chanes to come.

24.The three Ds mentioned in the last paragraph are____

- [A]auction houses' favorites
- [B]contemporary trends
- [C]factors promoting artwork circulation
- [D]factor promoting artwork circulation
- [D] styles representing Imperssionists

25.The most appropriate title for this text could be__

- [A]Fluctuation of Art prices
- [B]Up-to-date Art Auctions

[C] Art Market in Decline

[D] Shifted Interest in Arts

Text2

I was addressing a small gathering in a suburban Virginia living room—a women's group that had invited men to join them. Throughout the evening, one man had been particularly talkative, frequently offering ideas and anecdotes, while his wife sat silently beside him on the couch. Toward the end of the evening, I commented that women frequently complain that their husbands don't talk to them. This man quickly nodded in agreement. He gestured toward his wife and said, "She's the talker in our family." The room burst into laughter; the man looked puzzled and hurt. "It's true," he explained. "When I come home from work I have nothing to say. If she didn't keep the conversation going, we'd spend the whole evening in silence."

This episode crystallizes the irony that although American men tend to talk more than women in public situations, they often talk less at home. And this pattern is wreaking havoc with marriage.

The pattern was observed by political scientist Andrew Hacker in the late 1970s. Sociologist Catherine Kohler Riessman reports in her new book Divorce Talk that most of the women she interviewed—but only a few of the men—gave lack of communication as the reason for their divorces. Given the current divorce rate of nearly 50 percent, that amounts to millions of cases in the United States every year—a virtual epidemic of failed conversation.

In my own research, complaints from women about their husbands most often focused not on tangible inequities such as having given up the chance for a career to accompany a husband to his, or doing far more than their share of daily life-support work like cleaning, cooking and social arrangements. Instead, they focused on communication: "He doesn't listen to me." "He doesn't talk to me." I found, as Hacker observed years before, that most wives want their husbands to be, first and foremost, conversational partners, but few husbands share this expectation of their wives.

In short, the image that best represents the current crisis is the stereotypical cartoon scene of a man sitting at the breakfast table with a newspaper held up in front of his face, while a woman glares at the back of it, wanting to talk.

26. What is most wives' main expectation of their husbands?

[A] Talking to them.

[B] Trusting them.

[C] Supporting their careers.

D. Sharing housework

27. Judging from the context, the phrase “wreaking havoc” (line 3, para. 2) most probably means ____.

[A] generating motivation

[B] exerting influence

[C] causing damage

[D] creating pressure

28. All of the following are true EXCEPT ____.

[A] men tend to talk more in public than women.

[B] nearly 50 percent of recent divorces are caused by failed conversation

[C] women attach much importance to communication between couples

[D] a female tends to be more talkative at home than her spouse

29. Which of the following can best summarize the main idea of this text?

[A] The moral decay deserves more research by sociologists.

[B] Marriage break-up stems from sex inequalities

[C] Husband and wife have different expectations from their marriage.

[D] Conversational patterns between man and wife are different.

30. In the following part immediately after this text, the author will most probably focus on ____

[A] a vivid account of the new book Divorce Talk

[B] a detailed description of the stereotypical cartoon.

[C] other possible reasons for a high divorce rate in the US.

[D] a brief introduction to the political scientist Andrew Hacker.

Over the past decade, many companies had perfected the art of creating automatic behaviors - habits - among consumers. These habits have helped companies earn billions of dollars when customers eat snacks or wipe counters almost without thinking, often in response to a carefully designed set of daily cues.

“There are fundamental public health problems, like dirty hands instead of a soap habit, that remain killers only

- A.Tide
- B.Crest
- C.Colgate
- D.Unilever
- 34.From the texr we know that some of consumers' habits are developed due to_____.
- A.perfected art of products
- B.automatic behavior creation
- C.commercial promotions
- D.scientific experiments
- 35.The author's attitude toward the influence of advertisement on people's habits is_____
- A.indifferent
- B.negative
- C.positive
- D.biased

Text 4

Many Americans regard the jury system as a concrete expression of crucial democratic values, including the principles that all citizens who meet minimal qualifications of age and literacy are equally competent to serve on juries; that jurors should be selected randomly from a representative cross section of the community; that no citizen should be denied the right to serve on a jury on account of race, religion, sex, or national origin; that defendants are entitled to trial by their peers; and that verdicts should represent the conscience of the community and not just the letter of the law. The jury is also said to be the best surviving example of direct rather than representative democracy. In a direct democracy, citizens take turns governing themselves, rather than electing representatives to govern for them.

But as recently as in 1968, jury selection procedures conflicted with these democratic ideals. In some states, for example, jury duty was limited to persons of supposedly superior intelligence, education, and moral character. Although the Supreme Court of the United States had prohibited intentional racial discrimination in jury selection as early as the 1880 case of Strauder v. West Virginia, the practice of selecting so-called elite or blue-ribbon juries provided a convenient way around this and other antidiscrimination laws.

The system also failed to regularly include women on juries until the mid-20th century. Although women first served on state juries in Utah in 1898, it was not until the 1940s that a majority of states made women eligible for jury duty. Even then several states automatically exempted women from jury duty unless they personally asked to have their names included on the jury list. This practice was justified by the claim that women were needed at home, and it kept juries unrepresentative of women through the 1960s.

In 1968, the Congress of the United States passed the Jury Selection and Service Act, ushering in a new era of democratic reforms for the jury. This law abolished special educational requirements for federal jurors and required them to be selected at random from a cross section of the entire community. In the landmark 1975 decision Taylor v. Louisiana, the Supreme Court extended the requirement that juries be representative of all parts of the community to the state level. The Taylor decision also declared sex discrimination in jury selection to be unconstitutional and ordered states to use the same procedures for selecting male and female jurors.

36. From the principles of the US jury system , we learn that _____.

- [A] both literate and illiterate people can serve on juries
- [B] defendants are immune from trial by their peers
- [C] no age limit should be imposed for jury service
- [D] judgment should consider the opinion of the public

37. The practice of selecting so-called elite jurors prior to 1968 showed _____.

- [A] the inadequacy of antidiscrimination laws
- [B] the prevalent discrimination against certain races
- [C] the conflicting ideals in jury selection procedures
- [D] the arrogance common among the supreme Court judges

The answer,says Dr Kroo, lies with birds. Since 1914, scientists have known that birds flying in formation – a V-shape – expend less energy. The air flowing over a bird's wings curls upwards behind the wingtips, a phenomenon known as upwash. Other birds flying in the upwash experience reduced drag, and spend less energy propelling themselves. Peter Lissaman, an aeronautics expert who was formerly at Caltech and the University of Southern California, has suggested that a formation of 25 birds might enjoy a range increase of 71%.

When applied to aircraft, the principles are not substantially different. Dr Kroo and his team modelled what would happen if three passenger jets departing from Los Angeles, San Francisco and Las Vegas were to assemble over Utah, assume an inverted V-formation, occasionally change places so all could have a turn in the most favourable positions, and proceed to London. They found that the aircraft consumed as much as 15% less fuel (coupled with a reduction in carbon-dioxide output). Nitrogen-oxide emissions during the cruising portions of the flight fell by around a quarter.

There are, of course, knots to be worked out. One consideration is safety, or at least the perception of it. Would passengers feel comfortable travelling in companion? Dr Kroo points out that the aircraft could be separated by several nautical miles, and would not be in the intimate groupings favoured by display teams like the Red Arrows. A passenger peering out of the window might not even see the other planes. Whether the separation distances involved would satisfy air-traffic-control regulations is another matter, although a working group at the International Civil Aviation Organisation has included the possibility of formation flying in a blueprint for new operational guidelines.

It remains to be seen how weather conditions affect the air flows that make formation flight more efficient. In zones of increased turbulence, the planes' wakes will decay more quickly and the effect will diminish. Dr Kroo says this is one of the areas his team will investigate in the future. It might also be hard for airlines to co-ordinate the departure times and destinations of passenger aircraft in a way that would allow them to gain from formation flight. Cargo aircraft, in contrast, might be easier to reschedule, as might routine military flight.

As it happens, America's armed forces are on the case already. Earlier this year the country's Defence Advanced Research Project Agency announced plans to pay Boeing to report that some military aircraft flew in formation when they were low on fuel during the Second World War, BUT Dr Lissaman says they are unsubstantiated. "My father was an RAF pilot and my cousin the skipper of a Lancaster lost over Berlin," he adds. So he should know.

41. Findings of the Stanford University researchers will promote the sales of new Boeing and Airbus aircraft.
42. The upwash experience may save propelling energy as well as reducing resistance.
43. Formation flight is more comfortable because passengers can not see the other planes.
44. The role that weather plays in formation flight has not yet been clearly defined.
45. It has been documented that during World War II, America's armed forces once tried formation flight to save fuel.

"Sustainability" has become a popular word these days, but to Ted Ning, the concept will always have personal meaning. Having endured a painful period of unsustainability in his own life made it clear to him that sustainability-oriented values must be expressed through everyday action and choice.

Ning recalls spending a confusing year in the late 1990s selling insurance. He'd been through the dot-com boom and burst and, desperate for a job, signed on with a Boulder agency.

It didn't go well. "It was a really bad move because that's not my passion," says Ning, whose dilemma about the job translated, predictably, into a lack of sales. "I was miserable. I had so much anxiety that I would wake up in the middle of the night and stare at the ceiling. I had no money and needed the job. Everyone said, 'Just wait, you'll turn the corner, give it some time.'"

Section IV Writing

Part A

47. Directions:

You have just come back from the U.S. as a member of a Sino-American cultural exchange program. Write a letter your American colleague to

- A. express your thanks for his/her warm reception;

B. welcome him/her to visit China in due course.

C. You should write about 100 words on ANSWER SHEET 2.

Do not sign your own name at the end of the letter. Use “Zhang Wei” instead.

Do not write your address. (10 points)

Part B

48 Directions:

In this section, you are asked to write an essay based on the following chart. In your writing, you should

A. interpret the chart and

B. give your comments.
